

Laptops Delivery By Next Day

When you buy something off the internet you usually assume that it will be here within the week, but imagine if it was here the next day! Buying a new laptop can be difficult enough without having to worry about shipping and delivery on top of it. It can be hard to know which type of delivery option to go for and making the wrong decision can cost you. Here are the delivery options explained with their pros and con's.

1st Class Delivery

First class is probably your cheapest option so if you are on a really tight budget then this may be for you. However it does not guarantee that you will receive your product (we all hear about how things get lost in the post) and it doesn't guarantee it gets there in one piece. Problems such as staff shortage in the mailing warehouse or a postal strike will mean that it could take you far longer than the recommended 2 days, or worse you won't see it at all.

Recorded Delivery

Recorded delivery is great because you can track where your parcel is and you can be sure that it has left the warehouse and is on its way to you. It also allows the sender to insure the package for up to &#pound;500 for free so if it makes it to you damaged, no one loses out. However again there are no guarantees that you will receive it within a specific time and may be waiting all week for it.

Courier Delivery

This delivery option is slightly better than the others as it will be using a private company to delivery your items. This private company will be held responsible if anything goes wrong and as such take great care with their packages. The only downside to courier delivery is that it can take a few days to get to you and you don't always know what time they will be arriving so could wait all day for a parcel. The up side is that you can have it delivered to any address so if you work it would be a good idea to have it delivered there so you don't have to take any time off.

Next Day Delivery Laptop

Probably the best delivery option available. Next day delivery will allow you to receive your laptop and start using it within 24 hours. Most companies have a cut off time so be sure to check before placing your order. Next day delivery will guarantee that you receive your laptop and the less time it is in the system then the less likely it is to be damaged.
